

KIM & DAVID'S Renovation Adventure

STORY M. CAROLYN BLACK | PHOTOGRAPHY SANDY MACKAY

When it comes time to downsize from a large family home, many folks think about the space they're giving up. Not Kim and David Smith. With their newly renovated digs, they're quite satisfied with less space to clean and better space for living.

Kim, longtime OUR HOMES account representative, and husband David are passionate about building and renovating homes. Over the years, they've built four custom homes from the ground up, completed and redecorated three model homes and totally renovated three older homes. For this renovation, David has come full circle – back to the Tiny Beaches area. "I grew up in this area but left in the 1970s," he says. "I found that I missed the water, sunsets and mountains." The couple travel extensively, have been to many countries and have lived in several homes over the years, but they both say they are most at home with the beauty of life on the shores of Georgian Bay. They were attracted to this property because of the expansive views of Nottawasaga Bay, Collingwood and Blue Mountain, that, on a clear day, are breathtaking.

The exterior of Kim and David Smith's home was completely redone, with new stone and Maibec siding painted Amherst Gray by Benjamin Moore. They also added a new porch, new front door and new landscaping. David built the storage bunkie. ABOVE: David and Kim can't wait to entertain and enjoy summer on the water after another full-home renovation. OPPOSITE: Everyone receives a warm welcome at the Smiths' waterfront home.

Both Kim and David were involved in every step of the renovation process, from inception to finishing touches, and while they think this beautifully renovated home on Woodland Beach might be their forever home, David says “never say never.” They purchased the home – an unremarkable two-storey with four cramped bedrooms on the upper floor, a bathroom door that always hit the toilet and a “scary” unfinished basement – in 2016 and started right away, gutting the entire space. After many, many long days of hard work, they moved in a year later.

The beachfront location was perfect; the septic and drilled well were in good shape but restrictions on waterfront building meant they had to plan the renovation around existing waterfront setbacks. The original plan, designed by David and Adrian Worton of Daymark Design Inc., had a large addition on the back of the house but at the last minute the couple realized that their plan to downsize wasn't really in line with the extra space, so they nixed it.

Kim says, “Originally, we were going to put an addition on the back of the house but since it's just the two of us we thought, do we really need this?” Instead they built out only a few feet in the back, giving them a generous foyer space and a new staircase to the upper floor that wasn't as steep as the original. They also reorganized the upper floor into three more generous-sized bedrooms rather than the original four small ones. Building out also added deep window ledges in the kitchen and dressing room closet above. Kim particularly likes the addition of quartz to the kitchen ledge. Continued on page 36

The nicely designed and spacious kitchen is the hardest-working room in the home. The quartz and granite counters are from Discount Granite Plus.

The kitchen is one of the couple's favourite rooms. Kim says, "Although this home is much smaller than our last we were happy to be able to fit a fairly large kitchen into the space." The gleaming white tile backsplash offsets the leathered granite countertops perfectly. The quartz and granite counters are from Discount Granite Plus and all tile throughout the home came from Desert Tile.

The waterview from the original home was practically nonexistent, with tiny windows near the ceiling and few exits to the waterfront. The couple put in large windows, kept the colour scheme monochromatic and added texture instead of colour to walls and ceilings in the form of creamy white panelling. Doors and all trim came from Barrie Trim & Mouldings Inc. They purchased tongue-and-groove pine for the ceilings from Breen's Lumber in Moonstone and installed and painted the ceilings themselves, with a little help from family members. Duane Janes of D. Janes Construction completed the exterior stone work.

Although Kim and David are skilled renovators, they both learned a thing or two during the creation of their home. Kim became adept at using saws, especially tile saws, and David learned to use a Bobcat for the heavy lifting required by the landscape design.

When the lifting forks kept falling out of the front of the Bobcat and, since David, why not get our music friends together and put on a performance." David, who plays guitar and sings, is just one of many family members and friends passionate about music and he wants to make an evening of music an annual event. Dubbed Woodland Jam, last summer's event was held primarily in the garage due to bad weather but the Smiths are hoping this summer's Jam will be fully open air.

The flooring throughout the home is a Swiss laminate, industrial grade, to withstand beach sand and water tracked in (by grandchildren and musical guests) over summer months. They had to wait three months for the flooring to come directly from Switzerland. The furniture is casual yet modern and was sourced at Catherine Staples Interiors. Bespoke nesting tables in the living room, with wood tops and iron bases, was custom designed and made by Northern Iron. Lighting was sourced at Glass Lighting Gallery and Dwellings and the blinds and paint came from Wasaga Beach Decorating.

The property juts out on a small point, creating water views from the side of the property and the bunkie. Kim says they make a pretty good team, with her in charge of planning, purchasing and budgeting while David covers implementation. Kim adds, "I have the ability to see past the limitations of the house we purchased to envision a home that we actually enjoy living in." The need to be even more creative with space when it's at a premium is definitely something both David and Kim excel at. It's no wonder they think they might have one more build or renovation in their future. OH
